“An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.” When Benjamin Franklin wrote these words in Poor Richard’s Almanac, he realized this fundamental principle would stand the test of time. This adage probably applies best to the areas of health and wellness, and is never more valuable than with the care of our pets, horses, and livestock. We are responsible for their health and wellness as they cannot provide for themselves. As the veterinary profession has adapted and changed over the years, we have focused more on maintenance and preventive care. This evolution benefits the animals as well as their owners. Preventive care also reduces stress by limiting the number of emergency situations and avoiding costly diseases.

For many of us, owning a horse is the fulfillment of a lifelong dream. As with any economic or emotional investment, we want to protect our horses as much as possible. It is vital that we prevent disease and try to stay ahead of problems before they result in pain, suffering, or even death. By partnering with your veterinarian, we can develop the best situation for each and every horse.

After much research and thought, our veterinarians have developed the Equine Wellness Program. We believe a wellness program is vital to the well-being of every horse, whether a moderately traveled trail horse, a broodmare, an intense show horse, a work horse, or a backyard buddy. This program is designed to manage yearly medical care, including a targeted deworming program. Our vaccination protocol targets the diseases that are common to our area during the time of greatest risk.

Although no single program can fit the specific needs of every horse, we have developed our Equine Wellness Program to try to simplify wellness care. Our veterinarians can modify the basic plan to fit your horse’s individual situation.

We are excited to be offering this plan and are proud to be part of the forefront of equine veterinary preventive medicine. We look forward to providing you an easy comprehensive program that is both medically sound and financially feasible.
